OUR ATTORNEYS

HEATHER GIBBONS spent over a decade as an in-house director, manager and attorney leading claims and subrogation efforts with a large national carrier. Heather also holds a Master of Business Administration and a CPCU designation. She has managed some of the biggest wildfire and water loss subrogation litigations in California leading to millions of dollars in recovery. Heather is based in San Diego, CA.

SALLY NOMA founded Noma Law as a modern alternative to the legacy firms in the property subrogation space. She is best known for her deep expertise in product liability and commercial losses. As a self-professed “subro nerd” she is passionate about collaborating with clients to ensure there is a strong subrogation-focused culture at the claims level. She is a frequent speaker and sponsor of National Association of Subrogation Professionals (NASP) and currently serves as co-chair of the Legislative Affairs Committee. Sally is well respected for her ability to provide creative legal analysis and leverage her claims background when evaluating each case. She litigates throughout California and is based in Oakland, CA.

CHRISTINA TOROYAN litigates subrogation matters from investigation through trial. Christina previously served as in-house counsel for a large insurance company. She prides herself on close relationships with her claim adjuster clients. Christina is based in Los Angeles, CA.
